Senator Dominguez's Speech That Brought Death to Him, Dictatorship, and Imprisonment of Congress

disappearance of senator Dominguez, and, second, in the imprisonment of the antiflueria members of the Mex-ican chamber of deputies and the as-sumption by Huerta of the functions of the legislative as well as the execu-tive division of the Mexican govern-

A day or two after delivering this address senator Dominguez was accosted by a policeman at his hotel, and that was the last reen of him. He simply disappeared as he knew he would, having made out his will before going to that day's session of the house. His own note at the end of his address explains why his speech had never been published in full before.

had never been published in full before.

Following is a careful translation of the address:
Gentlemen of the senate:

"You have all read with profound interest the message presented by Don Victoriano Hiserta before congress on the 18th of this month. Undoubtedly the many falsehoods contained in that document have filled you with indignation as they have me. Gentlemen, who is a they pretend to deceive? Is it the congress of the union? No, gentlemen! All of its members are men of enlightenment who cannot be deceived in the matter and who are well posted on the country's events. Is it intended to deceive the Mexican nation, this noble fatherland, that trusting in your integrity has placed in your hands her dearest concerns? In this case what must the national house of representatives must depose don Victoriano Huerta from the trust with which the country has honored it, tell the truth and not left fall into the abyes that opens at its feet.

This is the truth. During the governors who will take care to mock the people by means of criminal and ridiculeus farces.

Nevertheless, gentlemen, a supreme effort can save it all. Let the house of representatives perform its duty and the country shall be saved and it will again thrive in greater proportions, the presentatives must depose don Victoriano Huerta from the presidency of the republic, he being the person against whom all our testing and consequently he being the person who is the least able to carry out the task of pacification—supreme hope of all Mexicans.

You may answer me gentlemen, that the attempt is dangerous, that don Victoriano Huerta is a blood thirsty and ferocious soldier who murders without scraple or hesitaney all who stand in his way. It matters not, gentlemen, the country shall be saved and it will applied to make the country shall be saved and it will applied to make the country shall be saved and it will applied to make the country shall be saved and it will applied to mean the country shall be saved and it will applied to mean the country shall

This in a summary is the sad reality. To the weak spirited our ruin seems inevitable because don Victoriano Huerta has taken such a hold of power that in order to insure the success of his nomination to the presidency of the republic in the mock elections announced for October 26 next, he has not hesitated to violate the sovereignty of most of the states, withdrawing constitutional governors and imposing military governors who will take care

Although the governor gave out no statement, it was known that overnight developments renewed his hope of a possible peaceful settlement of the strike that has been in progress since September 23. The governor was reticent os to the proposals discussed at his conference.

Negotioations between the governor, the operators and the miners had developed nothing definite at noon. The operators had declined to meet the miners' officials and the conference proceeded during the morning with the governor acting as go-between.

It was understood that the miners insist that the operators should grant check weighment, a bi-monthly pay day and an eight hour day, all of which are provided under the state law. That the operators would assure the governor that they would "obey the law" was as far as the operators would agree to ge, according to unofficial reports from the conference room.
